

English Composition and Rhetoric Enlarged: Edition Emotional Qualities of Style, Vol. 2 (Classic Reprint)

Second and concluding Part of my revised and enlarged Bhetoric the Emotional Qualities OF Style. So far as I know, this is the first attempt at a methodical and exhaustive account of these Qualities. The meagre discussion of them in the original work is now replaced by a more precise classification and a much ampler detail of examples. It may not be amiss, at the very outset, to call the readers attention to the fundamental, and all but unconquerable, difi culties that beset this subject; namely, the vague and indefinable character of the human feelings, the impossibihty of stating their amount with preciseness, and of analyzing their composition in a convincing manner. These difficulties are equally felt by the methodical rhetorician, and by the unmethodical critic, who proceeds upon instinct, and perhaps despises Bhetoric. All alike have to use some kind of emotional terminology; the names for expressing states of mind, besides being more or less indefinite, must be liable to personal vagaries of interpretation. Only by very wide comparison and illustration can some approach be made to an understood standard, and to exactness in the use of critical diction.(Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and dont occur in the book.)About the Publisher Forgotten Books is a publisher of historical writings, such as: Philosophy, Classics, Science, Religion, History, Folklore and Mythology.Forgotten Books Classic Reprint Series utilizes the latest technology to regenerate facsimiles of historically important writings.
