

1000 Living Details

The design of the objects that fill a home is a combination of variables such as size, style, mechanics, textures, and materials. Whether practical or just beautiful to behold, these products are designed to satisfy daily needs, and ultimately define the quality and style of life of a home's occupants. This book features objects with images of their design process, from initial sketches on paper or computer renderings to the final product with its functions.
